As an avid motorcyclist for more than a half-century, I've seen some unsafe traffic rules, but this is the dumbest.

A bad rider doesn't care if this is a rule or not. A bad rider doesn't care if it's called lane sharing, or lane splitting. Bad riders already flaunt lane rules while traffic is still moving, splitting lanes at dangerous speeds. I fear more will be emboldened if this becomes law.

A proficient rider anticipates traffic flow, and if necessary uses the "emergency lane" to exit the road for their own safety.
