I strongly disagree with this movement.

Oregonians could use their Kicker refund ($1,730 average) to help cover the pain of inflation (caused, in part, by trillions in new federal government spending)

- Oregonians could use their Kicker refund ($1,730 average) to deal with the State's economic slump that is causing businesses to leave our state.
- Oregonians could use their Kicker refund ($1,730 average) to pay for groceries, food and high housing costs.
- Oregonians could use their Kicker refund to better handle the forecasted recession that State Economists say is approaching Oregon this later year.
