- Annual update of connections to federal law

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

Oregon has a continuing connection to the federal definition of taxable income (“rolling reconnect”) for personal and corporate income taxes. The rolling reconnect automatically adopts federal changes to the definition and incorporates them into the respective tax calculations. In general, a continuing connection to federal law is not permitted by Oregon's Constitution, but there is an exception for the definition of taxable income used for federal taxes.

Ties to federal law other than the definition of taxable income must be updated regularly to incorporate changes. This bill makes routine updates to those provisions, as detailed in the section-by-section description in the Committee's meeting materials.

On February 19th, the Committee heard from representatives of the Oregon Society of Certified Public Accountants about changes in federal law through December, and about potential future legislation.

HB 4034 updates fixed-date connections to federal tax law, and does not change the automatic connection of Oregon Taxable Income to taxable income as defined by the Internal Revenue Code.

The measure also removes a purported continuing connection to federal law in certain Oregon property tax laws, which is ineffective because changes in property tax definitions cannot be delegated to Congress. The specific statutes do have updated connection based on a fixed date (December 31, 2023 in HB 4034), which does tie to law changes through that date.
