We are retired. We don't have means to increase our income. With current inflation we are already hurting. Increasing property taxes could cause people to lose their properties to the government as we all know the government has been given the authority to do just that with no recourse to the home owner other than to pay. This also takes the control out of the counties and puts it into the states hands. To much power to the governor, it needs to stay local. My husband I are now talking this might be the catalyst that we move out of state getting our children to join us. Idea, instead of increase taxes, how about we reduce the unwanted and unnecessary government programs and just stick to the basics? I would vote a "Hell Yes" on that.
