Measure: HJR201

We strongly oppose HJR201. We are retired and on a fixed income. We will be unable to pay for larger and larger property tax increases that will be experienced if property tax increases are not kept in check. Many states, such as Washington reduce property taxes for seniors. Property tax revenue has increased significantly since 2009 because of the increase value of homes and the large volume of new homes. The revenue from these taxes should have been more than enough for increase needs for the government, if managed properly. However, poor management continues year after year with no end in sight. We don't need more control by the legislators, who have continually shown inability to manage the tax revenues they already have control.
