Measure: HB4161

As parents, we should be allowed to choose where our children are educated. Mandating or restricting the parent's right to choice is an infringement of our liberties. If a public education system teaches theories that fly in the face of parent's choice, they should be allowed to choose a different education system without restraint. This is actually referred to as survival of the fittest and is determined by the participants. This is not a decision that our government should ever be allowed to mandate. Forgive me, but that sounds very much like socialism.
