I completely disagree with this legislation. Now is not the time to be increasing taxes on Oregon homeowners when taxes in this state are at some of the highest levels as compared to other states in this country. You already have a significant homeless problem so I am wondering your logic on how something like this will make things better? And you want to use this money for public safety? Something this state's politicians has eroded and defunded over the last four to five years? Move this forward and continue to hear the sucking sound of other states drawing over our tax paying residents. I love this state, but I have hated to see politicians erode it as they have over the past few years. Passing something like this will just put another dead weight on any recovery we might see in the next few years.
