

Submitter: K R
On Behalf Of: Doing what's right
Committee: House Committee On Rules
Measure: SB1583

Neutral on the language of this bill. However, it is imperative that Schools work directly with parents when deciding what books are appropriate for children. Schools should be teaching the children reading writing and math to succeed in life. Educators and Legislators know darn well the books promoted to the children today are inappropriate and would not have been allowed a very few years ago.

One young child was sent home from school with an inappropriate book for her young age (7). She brought the book home, opened to an explicit picture and said "What's this? Why would anyone do this to young children? Do what's right!