BACKGROUND:

Oregon Business Development Department (OBDD), the Port of Portland, the Oregon Tourism Commission, and the Oregon Department of Agriculture (ODA) all currently work on trade strategy for the state. As the state's economic development agency, OBDD works with businesses on export market development strategies, helping them sell goods overseas. They also work with international recruiters and in-country representatives to attract Foreign Direct Investment to the state. The Port of Portland is the port district for the Portland metropolitan district. It includes four marine terminals, three airports, and five industrial parks. The Port of Portland plays a large role in trade for the state and has conducted a number of Trade Studies. The Oregon Tourism Commission, also known as Travel Oregon, is a semi-independent state agency and is the official destination management organization for the state. They work to promote tourism to Oregon in both domestic and international markets. Global sales staff are active in Canada, Japan, South Korea, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Germany, and Australia. ODA works to promote, develop, and expand worldwide markets for Oregon's agricultural products. They work closely with producers, cooperatives, and processors. They also organize overseas trade missions and host incoming foreign business delegates.

House Bill 3100 appropriates $3.2 million to OBDD to develop unified trade strategy in collaboration with other agencies and stakeholders.
