BACKGROUND:

ORS 107.095(1)(f) does not explicitly address the scope of a court’s award of the use, possession, or control of real or personal property during the pendency of a lawsuit for marital annulment, dissolution, or separation. House Bill 2638 adds the word “exclusive” to clarify that a party/spouse receiving such an award has the exclusive possession or control of the property without interference from the opposing party/spouse while the case is ongoing.
