BACKGROUND:

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) was created on September 26, 1914. It is a government agency that is intended to protect the public from deceptive or unfair business practices, and from unfair methods of competition. Recently, the FTC issued a final rule on unfair or deceptive fees that will be effective on May 12, 2025. The final rule, 16 CFR Part 464, specifies that it is an unfair and deceptive practice for businesses to offer, display, or advertise any price of live-event tickets or short-term lodging without clearly, conspicuously and prominently disclosing the total price. The rule defines "total price" to include the maximum total of all fees or charges a consumer must pay for any goods or services and any mandatory ancillary good or service, except that government charges, shipping charges, and fees or charges for any optional ancillary good or service may be excluded. The final rule also requires businesses to make specified disclosures before a consumer makes a purchase. Finally, the rule makes it an unfair and deceptive practice for businesses to misrepresent any fee or charge in any offer, display, or advertisement for live-event tickets or short-term lodging.

The Unlawful Trade Practices Act (UTPA) is one tool consumers may use to recover damages that occur as a result of deceptive sales or business practices. The UTPA was enacted in 1971. The UTPA provides individuals with a right of private action for deceptive practices with the sale of real estate, goods, or services. Additional recovery powers are given to the Attorney General and district attorneys.

Senate Bill 430 requires a retail seller that offers and sells good or services online to a resident of this state to display a written summary of the transaction prior to concluding the online sale.
