BACKGROUND:

The Willamette Falls Canal was constructed in the 1870s to allow river traffic to navigate around the 40-foot horseshoe shaped basalt ridge between Oregon City and West Linn on the Willamette River. In 1915, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers purchased the locks, which were later placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1974. The locks were deemed non-operational in December 2011. Senate Bill 131 (2015) established the Task Force on the Willamette Falls Navigation Channel and Locks to gather information related to the locks, including their current and potential future value. Subsequent legislation created the Willamette Falls Locks Commission (Senate Bill 256, 2017) and Willamette Falls Locks Authority as a public corporation (House Bill 2564, 2021).

A public corporation is an entity created by the state to carry out a public mission and provide public services. They are usually granted increased operating flexibility compared to a government entity, while retaining the principles of public accountability. Each is led by a board of directors appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate and typically is designated authority by the creating legislation to set public policy and manage operations.
