

HB 3835 -1, -2 STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

House Committee On Early Childhood and Human Services

Prepared By: Taylor Bickel, LPRO Analyst

Meeting Dates: 3/11, 3/20, 3/25, 4/3

WHAT THE MEASURE DOES:

The measure modifies laws related to the use of restraint and seclusion on children in schools and in care settings. The measure defines wrongful restraint and wrongful involuntary seclusion, outlines when restraint or seclusion may be used, and establishes procedures for investigating instances of wrongful restraint or seclusion. It modifies provisions regarding investigations of child abuse in certain settings and changes the definition of abuse. The measure allows the Department of Human Services (DHS) to place children in out-of-state agencies in certain scenarios, exempts medical transport from certain licensing requirements, modifies provisions of placements for older youth in care, and changes when a minor must provide consent for certain treatment. The measure establishes the OHSU Institute for Youth, requires reports to the Legislature, and makes clarifying and conforming amendments.

Detailed Summary:

Wrongful Restraint and Wrongful Seclusion (Section 1)

- Defines “involuntary seclusion” as the confinement of a child alone in a room or enclosed space from which they are prevented from leaving.
- Defines “restraint” as a physical restriction of a child’s actions or movements through holding, pressure, or other means.
- Defines “responsible individual” as a person over 18 who may have contact with a child as a result of their position.
- Establishes that “wrongful seclusion” occurs when a responsible individual places a child in involuntary seclusion for discipline, punishment, retaliation, or convenience of a responsible individual.
- Establishes that “wrongful restraint” occurs if a responsible individual:
 - Uses or directs the use of a restraint for discipline, punishment, retaliation, or convenience;
 - Administers or directs the administration of a chemical restraint;
 - Restrains or directs the restraint of a child through the excessive or reckless use of force that results in, or is likely to result in, serious physical harm.
- Clarifies that wrongful restraint or seclusion does not include age-appropriate disciplinary measures aligned with the child’s developmental stage and individual needs.
- Prohibits corporal punishment, wrongful restraint, or wrongful seclusion by a responsible individual.

Restraint and Seclusion in School Settings (Section 2-7)

- Aligns definition of “chemical restraint” with Section 1 of the bill.
- Permits the use of restraint only if:
 - The restraint is imposed by personnel of the public education or school district;
 - The student’s behavior poses a risk of imminent serious physical harm to the student, or others, including animals;
 - A less restrictive intervention will not reduce the risk;
 - The least amount of physical force necessary to mitigate the risk is used; and
 - The restraint is not wrongful restraint, or a type of restraint otherwise prohibited.
- Permits the use of involuntary seclusion only if:
 - The student’s behavior poses a risk of imminent serious physical harm to the student, or others, including animals;

HB 3835 -1, -2 STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

- A less restrictive intervention will not reduce the risk; and
- The involuntary seclusion is not wrongful seclusion.
- Requires that restraint or involuntary seclusion:
 - May only continue as long as the student’s behavior poses a risk, rather than a reasonable risk, of imminent serious physical harm;
 - May only be imposed by trained personnel of the public education or school district, unless trained personnel are not available due to an unforeseen emergency;
 - Must be continuously monitored.
- Modifies notification requirements to report incidents involving “serious physical injury” instead of “serious bodily injury.”
- Removes requirement that complainants seek remedies with the public education’s local governing body before submitting a complaint to the Superintendent of Public Instruction.
- Directs the State Board of Education to adopt rules regarding investigations related to restraint and seclusion to be conducted by the Department of Education, including limiting the subject of investigations to school districts rather than specific personnel and requiring rooms to be equipped with video recording equipment.

Secure Transportation Providers and Use of Restraint during Transport (Sections 8; 18)

- Modifies the definition of “secure transportation providers” to mean only nonmedical transport using specific vehicles.
- Removes children in the care of the DHS from the list of youth who may be restrained during transport under ORS 419A.245.

- Classifies the following acts as abuse of a child in care when committed by specific responsible individuals:
 - Causing nonaccidental physical injury or injury that is inconsistent with the individual’s explanation;
 - Neglect;
 - Abandonment;
 - Willfully inflicting physical pain or injury upon a child;
 - Committing specific crimes listed in ORS chapter 161;
 - Verbal abuse;
 - Financial exploitation;
 - Sexual abuse or exploitation.
- Removes the prohibited use of restraint or involuntary seclusion from the definition of abuse for purposes of sections related to reports and investigations of abuse of children in care.
- Defines “adjudicated youth foster home” as a foster home certified by the Oregon Youth Authority (OYA) and includes youth in these homes under “child in care.”

Use of Restraint and Seclusion of Children in Care (Section 12-14)

- Aligns definitions with Section 1 and removes the definition of “serious bodily injury.”
- Clarifies instances when restraints that include the non-incident use of a solid object that places pressure on a child’s mouth are permitted.
- Adds wrongful restraint and wrongful involuntary seclusion, as defined in section 1, as prohibited restraints.
- Prohibits wrongful restraint and wrongful involuntary seclusion in adjudicated foster homes.
- Allows the use of restraint or involuntary seclusion by certain child-caring entities only if the child’s behavior poses a risk of imminent serious physical harm, rather than a reasonable risk of imminent serious bodily injury, to themselves or others, including animals and:
 - A less restrictive intervention would not be effective;
 - The least amount of physical force and contact necessary is used; and
 - The restraint is not a prohibited type of restraint in ORS 418.521.

HB 3835 -1, -2 STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

- Clarifies that certain child-caring entities may physically intervene, without immobilizing the child in care, to protect individuals from an assault, serious physical harm, or sexual contact.
- Replaces references to “serious bodily injury” and “serious physical injury” to “serious physical harm.”

Procedures, Record Keeping, Notifications, Reports, and Training (Section 15 – 17)

Out-of-State and Congregate Care Placements of Children (Section 36 – 39; 48)

- Allows DHS to place a child in an out-of-state placement without requiring the placement be licensed by DHS as a CCA, without court approval, if:

 - The placement is requested by the child’s Tribe or is a youth regional treatment center funded by the Indian Health Service;
 - The child currently resides out of state, and requires treatment or care from an entity in the same state or a neighboring state;
 - The out-of-state placement is approved by an agency in that state that provides licensing services in compliance with certain interstate compacts and statutes; or
 - The placement is the nearest facility to the child’s community that provides necessary services or treatment.

- Requires DHS and OHA to establish rules for the approval process for out-of-state placements and ensure standards for quality assurance and oversight.

BACKGROUND:

Use of Restraint and Seclusion, and Secure Transportation Services

In 2011, the Legislature Assembly passed House Bill 2939, which limited the use of physical restraint and seclusion for students in Oregon schools. Senate Bill 963, passed in 2019, modified the permissible use of restraint in public schools. The bill prohibited the use of certain types of restraints including chemical, mechanical, prone, and supine restraints, and clarified circumstances under which students could be restrained. In 2021, the Legislative Assembly passed Senate Bill 710 which prohibited certain entities, including child-caring agencies (CCAs), foster homes, and developmental disability residential facilities (DDRFs) from using restraint or involuntary seclusion as a form of discipline, punishment, or retaliation. The bill prohibited the use of certain types of restraints, such as chemical or mechanical restraints. The bill also required secure transportation service providers that transported children to or from certain locations to be licensed as CCAs.

Subsequent bills passed by the Legislative Assembly have made changes to provisions regarding the use of restraint or seclusion in public education and care settings. These bills include SB 93 \(2023\), SB 790 \(2023\), and SB 1024 \(2023\).

ORS 418.523 outlines the permissible uses of restraint or involuntary seclusion of children in care and requirements for monitoring and authorizing continued restraint or seclusion. Under Oregon law, staff must be trained on the proper usage of restraint and seclusion, and DHS may investigate the improper use of restraint and seclusion as abuse of a child in care. The Children’s Care Licensing Program (CCLP), a division of DHS, collects and reports information relating to restraint and involuntary seclusion in CCAs. Those reports can be found on the CCLP’s webpage.

Out of State Placements

In recent years, placements of Oregon children in out-of-state CCAs became the subject of investigation and review following reports of treatment of children in some out-of-state facilities, including the use of chemical restraints and seclusion (Associated Press, 2019). In an informational presentation given to the Senate Committee on Human Services in April 2019, DHS reported that 84 youth in the Oregon foster system were placed out-of-state (DHS, 2019).

Following reports that DHS was placing foster children in hotels and other nonstandard placements, a practice known as "temporary lodging," a class action lawsuit was filed in 2012 (CASA for Children v. State of Oregon). A separate class action lawsuit filed in 2019, Wyatt v. Kotek, alleged that DHS had failed to protect foster children in its care from trauma, citing frequent moves, inadequate therapy, and unsafe placements. These cases highlighted systemic challenges including the use of temporary lodging and placements in out-of-state and unlicensed facilities. In 2024, a settlement for Wyatt was reached that required DHS to contract with a neutral expert to address foster care system outcomes. Additionally, the court for CASA appointed a special master, whose report made several recommendations to improve the system of care for foster children.

Senate Bill 1605, passed by the Legislative Assembly in 2020, was an omnibus bill relating to children. Among other changes, the bill prohibited DHS from placing a child in an out-of-state child-caring agency unless the agency met certain standards, including that the agency be licensed by DHS under Oregon law.

Beginning in 2022, DHS contracted with a Keizer-based nonprofit entity called Dynamic Life to supervise foster children in unlicensed short-term rentals as an alternative to temporary lodging, although the organization was not a licensed CCA. Following a series of investigative reports and legislative hearings, DHS ended the contract in 2024.
