BACKGROUND:

According to the Oregon Health Authority, Traditional Health Workers are individuals from their local communities who may also share socioeconomic ties and lived life experiences with health plan members. House Bill 3650 (2011) authorized coordinated care organizations to provide members with access to traditional health care and approved application for federal reimbursement for these services. House Bill 3407 (2013) created the Traditional Health Worker Commission to adopt rules regarding regulation of these health care providers.
