BACKGROUND:

The Oregon State University Extension Service (OSU Extension) runs community education programs across 34 of Oregon's 36 counties and to the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. OSU Extension program areas include 4-H youth development, family and community health programs, and outdoor school, among others. OSU Extension offers behavioral health programming across rural Oregon through the AgriStress Helpline, the Farm and Ranch Stress Assistance Network, and Coast to Forest.

In 2013, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) released a discussion guide and toolkit for Community Conversations About Mental Health. The toolkit had three objectives: to get communities talking about mental health, find innovative community-based solutions to community mental health needs, and to develop clear steps for communities to address those needs. Beginning in September of 2021, OSU Extension facilitated the first of a series of Community Conversations following the SAMHSA framework. Community Conversations convene local leaders, providers, and other community members to share experiences, discuss existing services and identify gaps, and map out action plans. Since 2021, OSU Extension has facilitated conversations in Tillamook, Union, Columbia, Umatilla, and Malheur counties.

Senate Bill 920 directs the Oregon State University Extension Service (OSU Extension) to administer a behavioral health promotion project.
