BACKGROUND:

The Driver and Motor Vehicle Services Division (DMV) of the Oregon Department of transportation (ODOT) is the state entity responsible for regulation and oversight of motor vehicles and drivers in the state of Oregon. It offers a number of services, credentials, and documents at nearly 60 field offices statewide, as well as a growing number online. Most of the documents and tests used by DMV are available exclusively in English; there are field offices that retain staff who are fluent in multiple languages who can assist in certain circumstances, but for issues such as written driver knowledge tests, the primary language for such tests is English.
