BACKGROUND:

Open educational resources (OERs) are freely accessible teaching, learning, and research resources such as textbooks, videos, and images, that can be legally adapted and redistributed for students' use at low or no cost. In 2015, the Oregon Legislative Assembly passed House Bill 2871, which provided a $700,000 appropriation to hire an OER specialist and establish a one-time grant program within the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC). In 2017, House Bill 2729 established Oregon's Open Educational Resources (OER) Program and required HECC to coordinate and report on the effectiveness of the program. The Oregon OER Program awards grants to faculty members to develop open source textbooks and course materials and provides professional development opportunities to train faculty members on using and developing open source materials.

According to information presented to the House Committee on Higher Education on January 31, 2023, the state has awarded $1,622,186 in OER grants since 2015, leading to an estimated savings of $16,782,190 for students. House Bill 3121 \(2023\) proposed an additional $5.2 million appropriation to Oregon's OER Program.
