BACKGROUND:

The Federal Government mainly collects taxes from state and local governments through employment taxes and Social Security and Medicare Section 218 agreements. Title 26 U.S.C. sect. 6417(b) allows state and local governments to receive tax credits for renewable energy projects against their federal tax liability.

According to the Department of the Treasury, school districts can utilize the tax credits for the purchase of electric school buses or other clean energy vehicles, installation of solar panels, installation of a microgrid, installation of central geothermal systems, and installing alternative fuel refueling property.
