My PA can do their job easier when they have a smaller caseload. Cuz I think it works better for them. I think it's better for their mental health and my mental health. It makes it easier for them to have less clients. My PA calls and checks in to check on my services and mental health. I really love hearing from her. My PA tells me about programs I might need. She also connects me with my providers (the people who help me live my life every day). She does a great job because her caseload size is currently small enough for her to provide good care to me. It is important to me that everybody with disabilities gets to connect with their PA and the services they need. Smaller caseloads make this more possible.
