There are very real concerns about FORCING another person to be tested against their will, esp. since there could potentially be no evidence that a disease has adversely affected the petitioner. At minimum, the petitioner should first be required to be tested to provide some evidence for the right to infringe upon another American's freedoms and rights. Additionally, adding youth authorities to this kind of medical mandate is a recipe for abuse because kids are frequently sick with colds and other minor viruses. Also, testing has not proven itself to be reliably accurate. Submitted respectfully, the Oregon Health Authority should intervene on behalf of Oregon's youth to put a stop to this proposed Draconian legislation.
