I think everyone is missing the big picture here. While I agree that we don't need to raise more money for this project, the bigger picture is how can we reduce congestion crossing the river. The answer is to keep the current bridge and build a new one a little further to the West. A number of people have submitted this idea already and I wonder why it's not gotten more traction. Certainly the demolition of the current bridge will be expensive. Building a completely new bridge will save money and increase traffic flow. Let's do the right, smart and most economical thing. No more money.
