I would like to submit testimony for support of the OregonFlora Program at Oregon State University. This site which has taken years to develop provides a valuable resource for not only academia but also the general public. I am a retired science educator and know how important it is for students to have access and ease in identifying and learning about Oregon flora. This website is a unique compilation of plants specific to Oregon that allows students to engage in the natural world and support their outdoor experience. Oregonflora provides information on how to identify plants, flora specific to Oregon, gardening tips with beautiful images. This website is an Oregon treasure, I hope you will continue funding such a crucial tool.

Sincerely,

Martha Greydanus
