We are not looking to drive our ATV's on the road on any kind or regular basis. They aren't built for that type of travel and it actually causes them harm. Instead, we are looking for legal options to common but infrequent situations. For example, I primarily use my side-by-side for recreation, but also as a back up in case of weather (we are pretty rural). I would like the option to legally drive it in the road for short distances (like to get gas for the generator). In addition, there are times where it is impractical (or would hurt the natural environment) to park my truck and trailer near a trail head or dune area. Driving the ATV on the road for a short distance would resolve this issue, but it is not currently allowed.
