I believe each county in the state of Oregon should have the right to maintain predator control including cougars. Southern Oregon and other places of the state have seen a massive decrease of elk and deer populations due to predators in the last decade. Especially with the introduction and growing population of Canadian timber wolves. Hunting in southern Oregon is tough as it is already. Having the ability to control predators easier as hunters would be a massive help and would help more people get into hunting around the state with higher success rates! Thank you for the opportunity of giving us Oregon hunters a say in this!
