it would be a bad idea to band leaded fuel because some of the old time racer still used but very little and guarantee its not being spiel because of the coast is very high never hurd of anybody died of it most racer are very careful when using it I have been racing at PIR for over 40 years and always have a lot of fun and has control the place where everybody is safe it is too much other bad thing going on in the world to worry about something so small it would coast more than its worth thank you
