This is absolutely stupid, banning leaded fuel at a RACE TRACK. Fuel goes in car to be used to make the engine work. It doesn't get put on the ground to an environmental hazard or a hazard to people and animals. Leaded fuel is no different than any other fuel being used in everyday vehicles out on the highway. Infact EVs are way more dangerous and cause way more environmental damage than leaded fuel will ever do.

Most importantly leaded fuel is needed in certain types of engine and racing due to the lubrication properties that leaded fuel has on internal engine components. And just because you ban it doesn't mean we will comply with it. We the people hate the government.
