Living near Portland International Raceway, I appreciate the excitement and tradition it brings to our community. But I also worry about the impact of leaded fuel on our health and environment. Breathing in toxic pollutants from race days isn't something anyone should have to accept as a cost of living here. Lead doesn't just disappear—it settles into our soil, affecting the gardens we tend and the food we grow. House Bill 2738 is a necessary step to protect public health while allowing PIR to continue being a place of excitement and community. We can support racing while also ensuring a cleaner, safer future for everyone who lives nearby.
