Changing the word militia to National Guard has more ramifications for the security of law abiding citizens than merely changing a few letters. We understand that this will take away a fundamental right of honest, responsible American citizens. The Bill of Rights are there to protect our liberty. Exchange these words and legally we lose our right to self protection and self defense. The definition of militia is a non-governmental body of armed citizens standing for a common cause, their protection of life and property.

National Guard is a governmental group paid to protect what their leaders who pay them tell them to protect, or attack. Right or wrong doesn't matter, they do what they are told.

Our liberty hinges on the fact that law abiding people are armed, government overreach is more difficult to obtain. Many nations have fallen because only one side has all the weapons. Our forefathers gave us the tools to keep any person or government from removing from us that which Americans hold most dear, our freedom and liberty.

Therefore I strongly opposed this bill and request a No Vote.
