The Oregon Food Bank has been a lifeline for me and so many others in our community. During tough times, they provided not just food, but dignity, support, and hope. No one should have to choose between paying bills and having a meal, and thanks to this program, many don't have to. But to keep it alive, we need support—whether through donations, volunteering, or simply spreading the word. Hunger affects us all, and together, we can ensure that no one in our community goes without food.
