I am strongly in favor of this bill, at least on the face of it. Certainly, further developing rail travel will help reduce congestion, greenhouse gas production, and will improve the quality of life for Oregonians. Large majorities of us, hunters and vegetarians alike, are in favor of wildlife protections and conservation. And, in case you don't know, discarded tires are a major breeding ground for mosquitoes - carriers of malaria, Dengue, and other disease, all of which are headed our way because of climate change.
