We need to take a look at this country's history as well as the history of others. We cannot go back to before when we did not care about habitat loss and conservation of forests. Going backwards will end up with this country losing all of its natural resources. We must find a sustainable route forward. Not go backwards to old logging practices and slap the word sustainable on it and overuse the word forest to try and confuse people into thinking there is actually going to be a sustainable forest using old logging practices that saw nearly the extinction of many forests. Communities need forests intact more than they need timber companies to get rich for a couple of decades until it all runs out.
