Taxation is theft.

Have any of you bought tires recently? I have. While inside, I observed a young man attempting to buy one tire for his sister's car because she could not afford one. He worked at the store I was in. He asked his boss what the cheapest tire they sold was. His boss looked it up; with his discount, it was $54. He could not afford $54 plus installation labor. His boss told him no labor; he had to call three people to get enough money for a $54 tire. Now, if I hadn't just spent $900 on tires that I saved up for four months to purchase, I would have helped him, but I could not.

Why does the state government deserve any more money? Your budget is poor now, the roads are poor, and everything is bad. We the people need you to improve your budget skills and show us you can manage even a basic budget before asking for more money.

No more taxes!
