

Submitter: Derek Shields

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Judiciary

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB821

I am absolutely appauld that this is even being considered. The damage to victims is for a lifetime and to now make them even more fearful that there aggressors may live close to them is completely unwarranted.

I'll put this in terms of liability to the state: if even one victim gets revictimized by their assailant then the state can be held liable. That's an expensive possibility...now multiply that by multiple victims.

Not to mention as a father and a husband, not knowing that my new neighbor could be a convicted rapist or child moleator is completely unacceptable and downright criminal in and of itself.

Victims are scarred for life and the perpetrators of those crimes should also carry the stigma for what they have done for life as well.

Public safety before sex offenders - always and forever!