Charter schools have made a big difference in the education of my children and help two of my struggling kids to graduate. I chose a charter school for my youngest because the smaller setting and willingness to accommodate neurodivergence was a better fit than the regular middle school. Last year we had to argue and bargain nearly every morning and this year she hasn't had a single unexcused absence. Charter schools should get equal funding so that all students can learn in an environment best suited to their needs.
