I am writing to share my SUPPORT to phase out PFAS from consumer products. PFAS are dangerous not only to human beings' reproductive and hormonal health (and we may in the future find evidence they are more harmful than we know right now) but they are also devastating to our environment, which is already facing grave threats on nearly every level. PFAS contamination is already so widespread that they are virtually ubiquitous in our environment and in products we use on a daily basis. We can likely not undo the problem, but we can have a less severe impact starting right now with bill HB 3512.

Thank you,
Alissa
