The Oregon Film office is a huge asset to this state's workers, our economy, and our ecosystem. We are extremely lucky to have Tim Williams and the other workers in the office, who are dedicated to not only bringing in jobs and showcasing all the beautiful corners of this state, they are conscientious of this state's core values throughout the growth process. They take care to lift up all Oregonians in the film industry, and foster sustainable relationships with partners around the country. The office supports so many valuable events, organizations, businesses, programs, and individuals, and we honestly could not function without them. I hope you also recognize the undeniable value of their work, and see fit to continue to allocate funding to them. Thank you.
