The Oregon Film Office attracts production companies who hire many Oregonians, and those folks depend on the productions for their jobs. The production companies spend a lot of money in Oregon, thus multiplying the effect of the funding spent to help the Film Office. This is a win-win for Oregon and the Oregonians who work in this business.

Each production must be separately incented to work here, and there are many people who depend 100% on a stream of productions coming to Oregon.
