To Chair Pham, Vice-Chair Anderson, and the members of the Senate Committee On Housing and Development,

I am a renter in the City of Portland. I lived in a one-bedroom apartment that I loved, but I had to move out last September after two straight years of rent increases that I could no longer afford. That corporate landlord used RealPage to set rent prices. Banning the use of price-fixing software is a common-sense solution that would help alleviate one of the many challenges that face renters today. I urge you to pass SB 722.
