There is no business as unregulated in Oregon as gun dealership. Even small goods stores selling teas and plants have to be inspected and insured. Only for the betterment and safety for the citizens of our community, gun dealers should be held to the same standards as those selling plants. I was involved in the opening of a small brick and mortar business and it took us 6 months in inspections from 4 agencies to be able to sell our dry goods to the public. We have a formal inspection by the state every year, but the city can drop in and inspect us at any time, and has the power to shut us down on the spot. Those selling weapons that can take lives should be held to as strict a standard if not stricter. I support this bill.
