Fully automatic firearms are already more strictly regulated than fentanyl; this bill is only an attempt at grandstanding, and as an inevitable precursor to further infringements on our right to bear arms.

I use fentanyl as an example because all homicides in this country amount to less than 20k deaths a year, while drug overdoses are at least 5 times that. It's clear that the bill's sponsors and proponents have less interest in public safety than they do in ideological grandstanding.
