Legal recognition for interior designers is long overdue and I fully support this bill. Gaining legal recognition would remove a significant burden on small business owners, remove hurdles to the career growth of Oregon's interior designers, and bring our state in line with the majority of other US states that legally recognize the interior design profession. I strongly support this bill as a licensed architect in the state of Oregon who would like to see my interior design peers legitimized by our legal system and granted the same legal rights as countless other professions in our state.
