I have 2 children who are donor conceived. My first one was fortunate enough to have his donor contact him on 23 and Me. My second child was "switched before birth" meaning the vial number did not match the DNA inside. Having this information would have made definitely excluding him as the donor quick and easy and then, when the real donor was located, (he was anonymous) we could have contacted him to confirm easily.

DNAngels helped us locate the donor and I did end up reaching out to him directly. He is still adamant about staying anonymous to the other kids.

Updated medical history and the option the know who the donor is, is invaluable information!!!!
