With Oregon and the nation's recovery post-pandemic remaining anemic, I see no reason the State of Oregon should punish vintners, brewers, and cider makers for expanding our economy. I could understand if we taxed mega-corporations that don't have any production in Oregon. They do not grow our economy. All of the locally affected companies employees and owners pay personal income and property taxes, as do there clients. If these sources of income are caused to close down or shrink their production there will be less revenue available to the state. Please reconsider and reject this obstructive legislation.
