I support mail voting in Oregon because it makes voting more convenient, secure, and accessible. Mail ballots give voters sufficient time to research issues and candidates, leading to more thoughtful participation. Oregon's vote-by-mail system consistently achieves high voter turnout rates and saves money by eliminating the need for traditional polling stations. Additionally, using paper ballots increases election security and allows accurate auditing, enhancing public trust in election outcomes. Overall, vote-by-mail strengthens democracy by encouraging widespread voter participation.
