Voter ID laws can stop multiple types of fraud, such as impersonating another registered voter, preventing noncitizens from voting, and stopping out-of-state residents or someone registered in multiple jurisdictions. That's one reason why voters across all demographics support voter ID laws in virtually every poll by almost 80%. Also, voting in person almost guarantees your vote gets counted. Historically, only about .01% of in-person ballots get rejected, compared with about 1% of mail-in ballots.
