

Submitter: Tamara Hunter

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Rules

Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB210

Here's a perspective on why some people believe in-person voting with legal resident ID is safer than mail-in voting:

Identity Verification:

In-person voting with legal resident ID allows for immediate verification of a voter's identity. This reduces the risk of someone voting under a false name or multiple times.

Reduced Vulnerability:

Mail-in ballots travel through the postal system, making them potentially vulnerable to tampering, loss, or fraud. In-person voting eliminates these risks by ensuring ballots are securely handled and counted at the polling place.

Sense of Community:

In-person voting can create a sense of civic duty and community participation. It offers a shared experience of participating in the republic process.