We depend on mail in voting. My wife is often not able to make it out to vote for medical reasons. And I recently had a driver's license expire due to travel (which I have since renewed.) The state already knows who I am and validated these things when I registered. I like how I can track my ballot to see that it was accepted. And I trust the verification, we once accidentally signed the wrong envelopes and it was caught and verified. Bills like this will only reduce turnout. And I am better informed as a voter when I can fill out a ballot at home and spend my time researching the issues.
