SB210

For years I had to take off work and stand in long lines for sometimes a couple of hours, much of which was outside, to cast my ballot in Arizona. When I moved to Oregon in 2009, I was very pleased to discover mail-in voting was the norm here. It is easy, accurate, and low impact on the life of the voter. I hear all the talking points against mail-in voting and I don't see any real evidence to support them. This has been repeatedly investigated and all the fear-mongering rhetoric has been disproven time and time again.
