SB210

I consider myself a conservative. I consider myself pro-family. I have 3 young children. My life is insanely busy between family and all the kids activities. If I had to show up in person to vote, it would reduce my likelihood of voting. I believe my situation will be commonly felt among adults with young families. Therefore, this is a very bad proposal. Efforts should instead be made to improve the quality of our voter rolls and eliminate those who have not voted in a reasonably long period of time and educating those who are concerned about election integrity so we can all feel like our elections are safe and fair.
