SB210

Passing SB 210 would be disastrous, as it severely undermines voter accessibility and disproportionately impacts seniors, disabled individuals, veterans, rural communities, and those with inflexible work schedules. Mail-in voting has proven to be secure, efficient, and inclusive, enabling all citizens—particularly those who face mobility or transportation challenges—to actively participate in the democratic process. Eliminating mail-in voting as a standard option not only discourages civic participation but also risks disenfranchising vulnerable populations who rely on this vital method of casting their ballots. This bill would set voting rights back decades, eroding public confidence and engagement in our elections.
